ye are the epistle of the Christ, having been ministered by us; written not in [an] ink, but (α) in the spirit [of the living God]; not in tables of stone, but (α) in tables of heart of flesh. ⁴ But we have such a trust through the Christ [toward God. ⁵] but (α) [our worthiness] from God is. [⁶ for the writing is that which putteth to death; but the spirit maketh live. ⁷ But if the ministration of [the] death [in writings] in stones [became in glory], so that were not able [the sons of the Israēl] to look into [the face of Mōysēs] because of the glory of his face, [] ⁸ How rather will not [the ministration of the] spirit become in glory? ⁹ For if the glory became of the ministration [of condemnation] more will exceed [the ministration] of the righteousness in the glory. [¹⁰ ¹¹ For if that which will be done away [became through glory, much rather] that which will remain will [become in glory]. ¹² Having therefore such hope we use great boldness of speech, ¹³ and not according as Mōysēs, [who is wont to put a] covering upon [his face, ¹⁴] for until this very day the same covering abode upon the reading of the old covenant, and it is not revealed that it will be done away in the Christ.

APPENDIX

CONTAINING SUPPLEMENTARY TEXT, TRANSLATION, AND APPARATUS OF GREEK AND BOHAIRIC MANUSCRIPTS

IN September, 1919, when all the imperfect text had been printed off, photographs of one of Mr. Pierpont Morgan's MSS. in New York, containing the entire text of the Pauline Epistles, were sent by Professor H. Hyvernât in Washington to the editor, who was allowed to use them for a few weeks. Thus he has been enabled to fill up all the missing text, and to confirm or correct the supplementary conjectures which had been placed within square brackets. The manuscript, which confirms the order of the Epistles (2 Cor.—Heb.), appears to be in good condition, with the last leaves slightly injured, making a few verses uncertain. It contains no archaisms, and sometimes spells $\text{gen } \text{g}\bar{\text{u}}$ for $\text{g}\bar{\text{u}} \text{ gen}$, is not earlier than the ninth century, and more likely of the tenth. No date can be seen in the photograph, which gives the colophon whence names of men and monasteries have been expunged. The writing is a good specimen of the γ class, and the ornament of the initial page and large and small capitals fairly well drawn. Below will be found an enumeration of the larger sections. The text in the collated passages has a tendency towards Middle Egyptian, e.g. Heb. xi. 29 $\epsilon\lambda\theta\epsilon\rho\alpha$ $\theta\alpha\lambda\alpha\kappa\kappa\alpha$, and in the colophon this tendency is more marked by use of α for \circ as well as λ for ρ .

N.B.—The Bohairic is marked in the short apparatus, where it does not agree with the Sahidic. The half-vowel line and punctuation follow the method of the rest of the printed Coptic text without any regard to the irregular manner of the manuscript.

Romans xii. 16. Thinking (the) same thought with one another: looking not at the (things) of pride. Be not wise for your own selves: ¹⁷ not repaying evil for evil to any one: taking care for the good (things) before every man. ¹⁸ (²⁴) If it is possible, making peace with every man: ¹⁹ revenging not yourselves, my beloved; but (Δ) leave the place for the anger. For it is written: Cast the judgement unto me; and I, I shall repay, said the Lord. ²⁰ But (Δ) if thine enemy hunger, give him to eat; and if he should thirst, give him to drink; for doing this, thou wilt spread coals of fire upon his head. ²¹ Let not thee be conquered by the evil; but (Δ) conquer the evil with (Θ) the good. xiii. ¹ Let every soul be subject to the authorities which are high: for there is not (any) authority except (ordained) by God; but those which are being are ordained by God. ² Wherefore he who resists the authority is resisting the ordinance of God: but they who do (resist) will take for them judgement. ³ For the rulers are not terrors to the work which is good, but (Δ) to the evil. Thou wishest therefore not to fear the authority: do the good, and thou wilt take reward from it. ⁴ For minister of God to thee it is unto that which is good. If therefore thou should do the evil, fear; for not in vain is it bearing the sword: for minister of God it is, avenger unto the anger for those who do the evil.

2 Corinthians iv. 6. unto the manifestation of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of the Christ. ⁷ But we are having this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excess of the power should become being God, being not out of ourselves; ⁸ being afflicted in every thing, but (α) we are not pressed (down); being made hopeless, but (α) we are not hopeless; ⁹ being persecuted, but (α) he forsaketh us not; being dashed down, but (α) we are not destroyed; ¹⁰ always carrying the death of Jesus in our body.

2 Corinthians v. 7. For we are walking through faith, through seeing, not; ⁸ we are confident of heart, and are willing rather to come out of the body to go with the Lord. ⁹ Because of this therefore we are eager, whether being in the body or whether being outside of it, for us to become pleasing to him. ¹⁰ For it is necessary for us all to be manifested before the judgement seat of the Christ; that each should receive the (things) which (were) through the body with respect to the (things) which he did, whether good or whether evil. ¹¹ Knowing therefore the fear of the Lord we persuade the men, but we are manifested to God; but I hope that I was manifested also in your hearts. ¹² For we were not commending ourselves to you, but we are giving to you occasion to boast about us, that ye should have (somewhat) toward those who boast (of) us in the face, in the heart not. ¹³ For whether we were beside ourselves we were beside ourselves to God, or whether our heart (is) at rest it is being at rest to you. ¹⁴ For the love of the Christ layeth hold of us, we having judged this, that if one died for them all, then all died; ¹⁵ and he died for them all, that those who live should not live any longer for themselves, but (Δ) for him who died for them all, and he rose. ¹⁶ Wherefore we, henceforth we know not any one according to flesh: if we knew the Christ even according to flesh, but (Δ) now we know him not. ¹⁷ Wherefore he who is in the Christ, new creation he is.

2 Corinthians vi. 10. as having not any thing, we are laying hold of all. ¹¹ Our mouth (is) open unto you, [the] Corinthians, our heart is widened. ¹² Ye are not narrowed in us, ye are narrowed in your affections. ¹³ But (with) the same recompense of reward, I say to you, as children, be ye also widened. ¹⁴ Become not walking with the unbelieving: for what is fellowship of the righteousness with the lawlessness? or what is the share of the light and the darkness? ¹⁵ What is the concord of the Christ and Beliar? or what is the portion of believing with unbelieving.

APPENDIX

CONTAINING SUPPLEMENTARY TEXT, TRANSLATION, AND APPARATUS OF GREEK AND BOHAIRIC MANUSCRIPTS

IN September, 1919, when all the imperfect text had been printed off, photographs of one of Mr. Pierpont Morgan's MSS. in New York, containing the entire text of the Pauline Epistles, were sent by Professor H. Hyvernât in Washington to the editor, who was allowed to use them for a few weeks. Thus he has been enabled to fill up all the missing text, and to confirm or correct the supplementary conjectures which had been placed within square brackets. The manuscript, which confirms the order of the Epistles (2 Cor.—Heb.), appears to be in good condition, with the last leaves slightly injured, making a few verses uncertain. It contains no archaisms, and sometimes spells $\text{ϩ}\epsilon\text{u}$ $\text{ϩ}\bar{\text{u}}$ for $\text{ϩ}\bar{\text{u}}$ $\text{ϩ}\epsilon\text{u}$, is not earlier than the ninth century, and more likely of the tenth. No date can be seen in the photograph, which gives the colophon whence names of men and monasteries have been expunged. The writing is a good specimen of the γ class, and the ornament of the initial page and large and small capitals fairly well drawn. The text in the collated passages has a tendency towards Middle Egyptian, e.g. Heb. xi. 29 $\epsilon\lambda\theta\epsilon\rho\alpha$ $\theta\alpha\lambda\alpha\kappa\alpha$, and in the colophon this tendency is more marked by use of α for \circ as well as λ for ρ .

N.B.—The Bohairic is marked where it does not agree with the Sahidic. The half-vowel line and punctuation follow the method of the rest of the printed Coptic text without any regard to the irregular notation of the manuscript.

Hebrews vii. 22. According to so much Jesus became surety of the covenant which is better (lit. chosen). ²³ And those indeed became many priests among them, because that the death let them not be permanent: ²⁴ but this (one), he, because he will remain for ever, hath this priesthood without failing. ²⁵ Because of this also it is possible for him to save always those who will come up unto God through him, living always, interceding for them. ²⁶ For such a chief priest (is) he who is seemly for us, being holy, innocent, unpolluted, withdrawn from the sins, having been exalted unto the heavens.

Hebrews viii. 1. But the summing up of the (things) which we say is: We have then (ΑΕ) such a chief priest, this (one) who sat (down) on the throne of the greatness in the heavens, ² the minister of those who are holy and the true tabernacle, that which the Lord pitched, not man. ³ For every chief priest is wont to be appointed to offer up gift and sacrifice; but (it is) of necessity for this (one) to have that which he will offer up. ⁴ But if he were upon the earth, he would not be priest, there being those who offer up gift according to the law, ⁵ these who minister in form and shadow of the (things) of the heaven.

⁹ Not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers in (ΑΑ) the day (in) which I laid hold of their hand to bring them out of the land of Kēme; because they, they remained not in my covenant. I also neglected them, said the Lord. ¹⁰ Because this is the covenant which I will settle with the house of the Israel after those days, said the Lord: I will give my laws upon their thoughts, and I shall write them upon their hearts, and become to them for God, and they (shall) become to me unto a people: ¹¹ and each (shall) not teach his (fellow) citizen, and each his brother, saying: Know the Lord: because they all will know me from their little (one) unto their great (one). ¹² Because I shall forgive their iniquities, and remember not their sins henceforth. In his saying: A new (covenant), he made old the first. But that which he made old and he made aged is near toward the destruction.

Hebrews x. 32. But remember the former days in which ye were enlightened, having endured a great conflict of sufferings. ³³ This indeed, under mocking of reproaches and tribulations; but this also, ye were sharers with those who (were) being so used (lit. on these). ³⁴ For even ye suffered with those who are bound, and the robbing of your possessions ye accepted, knowing that ye have better (lit. chosen) riches (and) permanent. ³⁵ Cast not therefore away your boldness of speech, this which hath great recompense of reward. ³⁶ For ye have need of patience, that having done the will of God ye might receive the promise. ³⁷ For yet it is a little more (time) very little, he who is coming (is) coming, and he will not Hebrews xi. 25. Having chosen for himself rather to suffer with the people of God than to take the enjoyment of the sin for a time; ²⁶ having reckoned the reproach of the Christ that it is more riches than the treasures of Kēme; for he was looking unto the paying to him of his reward. ²⁷ (14) In faith Mōyses forsook Kēme, he feared not the anger of the king: for him who is not wont to be seen he was persevering as seeing him. ²⁸ (15) In faith he did the Paskha and the pouring out of the blood, that he who destroyeth the first-born should not touch them. ²⁹ (16) In faith they crossed over the red sea as along earth being dry: this which attempted the Egyptians, (and) they were drowned. ³⁰ (17) In faith the walls of Hierikhō fell (down), when they had compassed them for seven days.

2 Timothy ii. 6. The husbandman who toileth, he indeed is wont to take out of the fruits first. ⁷ Consider the (things) which I say; for the Lord shall give to thee understanding in every thing. ⁸ Remember Jesus the Christ, having risen out of those who are dead, out of the seed of Daveid, according to my gospel.

INTRODUCTORY NOTE

THE Sahidic Acts of the Apostles formed the largest amount of Coptic text published by C. G. Woide in his appendix to the Greek Codex Alexandrinus of the New Testament in 1799. The text was mainly taken from the paper manuscript of the Bodleian Library, with which the editor combined the evidence of a few parchment fragments in his own possession and which were afterwards obtained by the Oxford Press. Parts of all the chapters, except XXV, XXVI, and XXVIII, will be found enumerated in the Register of Fragments.

Maspero, Chaine, and Bouriant in more recent time published other fragments in Recueil de travaux (1885), Mémoires de la Mission archéologique française (1884-5), and in Bessarione (1905), while Balestri gave all the Borgian fragments in his edition of 1904, belonging to seven chapters.

In 1912 Wessely began publishing the Vienna fragments representing parts of sixteen chapters, and in 1913 he produced his important very imperfect manuscript, placed at the head of the parchment series in the present edition; and attributed it to the fifth century, a date which may appear too early for the photographic specimen of the script. Just before the publication of Dr. Wessely's manuscript in the Sitzungsberichte of the Philosophisch-historische Klasse of the Kaiserliche Akademie der Wissenschaften, Band 172, Sir E. Wallis Budge had surprised textual scholars by editing a papyrus book containing Deuteronomy, Jonah, and the Acts of the Apostles, dated paleographically by a Greek cursive (or ligatured) colophon not much later than A. D. 300, belonging therefore to an earlier period than any Greek manuscript of the New Testament. The editor of this British Museum publication compared his manuscript with the text of the present edition, which, under the circumstances of all the Sahidic New Testament, could not be based on any one authority. He gave with great accuracy and care the variant readings; and Wessely made full use of them and other readings in his short apparatus, so that a large body of material has been placed at the disposal of scholars; but the present editor would caution textual critics against giving undue importance to the eclectic text which is here printed. They must form their own opinion from careful study of the variant readings.
